Customer Reviews

This is one of the worst books I have ever read. Not only is it full of erroneous information about craps, but some of the sentences are absolute gibberish! It starts out touting "proven winning strategies" (of which there are none, of course). His description of the flow of the game is very disjointed and sometimes simply incorrect. For example, "However, if the comeout rolls are 7 or 11, the shooter will be changed and everyone who betted (sic) on the pass will win." In fact, the shooter keeps the dice after a natural win. He doesn't know what the "ON" button means. He says you should place your I.D. "on the table and not anywhere else during the game as a sign of respect." WTF? His description of the 36 possible dice outcomes is almost unintelligible, then he says: "Boxcars is the instance wherein a shooter gets a six on each dice (sic), of which the outcome would be 12. This usually does not happen since the probability of this roll is just 1%" Of course, it's actually 1/36, or 2.78%. There are simply too many examples of total ignorance to mention. I actually got a few chuckles from this one: "Avoid placing minimum bets on the "Don't Pass" line since this entitles you to be deemed as someone who is laying the odds." I swear I'm not making this up! This person should not be writing in English, I think. Here's another classic: "There is something called the "Hard 8" in Craps. This means that most bets on the number 8, after 6 rounds, often lead to losses, so do not under any circumstances place your bets on the number 8 after the 6th round of the game." Here's his description of the Put Bet: Bet $5 on the Pass line and win when the shooter sevens out.
